Summary:

Most CEOs are unknowingly acting as their own Executive Assistant — and it's costing them. I fix that.

I'm a proactive EA with 4+ years supporting founders and business owners across the US. I take full ownership of inboxes, calendars, team coordination, and SOPs — so you focus on growing your business, not running it. I don't wait to be told. I anticipate, act, and build systems that keep things moving without you. Available across all US time zones (EST / CST / PST) and trusted with sensitive executive communications with strict confidentiality at all times.

Work History:

Start-Up Digital | Executive Assistant & General VA

February 2022 - Present

I serve as the right hand to the CEO of a digital agency, managing the day-to-day operations she shouldn't have to think about. Every day I open Missive to triage her inbox — drafting and sending replies on her behalf, flagging urgent emails, and archiving anything that doesn't need her attention. I manage her Slack, monitor team updates, and coordinate task follow-ups so nothing falls through the cracks. On the calendar side, I schedule client and team meetings, block focus time, and handle all reschedules and cancellations. I handle all of this with full discretion, maintaining strict confidentiality on sensitive executive matters. By owning these responsibilities entirely, I consistently free up 30+ hours per week for the CEO to focus on what actually grows her business.

WOW Textblast | Executive Assistant & Client Acquisition Manager

February 2020 - February 2022

I provided direct executive support to the CEO, starting each day with a structured goals report outlining my priorities and what I was taking off his plate. Daily responsibilities included managing his inbox, monitoring the sales pipeline, generating leads across multiple platforms, and producing reports that gave him a clear picture of business performance without having to dig for it himself. I handled the operational layer of his day so he could stay focused on decisions that moved the business forward, maintaining full confidentiality on all business-sensitive information. Over time I also took on client acquisition — identifying new opportunities and building relationships that expanded the company's client base.

IT's OK Mobile App | Operations Manager

January 2021 - January 2023

Supported the leadership team by building SOPs, onboarding new team members, and managing daily operations. Served as the internal point of contact for cross-team coordination, ensuring smooth communication between departments and that nothing fell through the cracks. Introduced workflow automation that improved operational efficiency by 20% and freed up leadership to focus on strategic growth.
